Sam: I want to make Christmas cookies as a present for my family and friends.

Tim: Wow, teach me how to make them. I enjoy learning to make some sweet things.

Sam: Okay. Here are some simple instructions for making these wonderful cookies.

First, break the white chocolate into small pieces and put them into a small pot.

Second, put some warm water in a big pot before you put the small pot into a big one.

Third, start to melt the chocolate and keep the water under 50°C.

Never let the water get in the small pot, or the chocolate may become hard.

Finally, stir the chocolate over and over for about two minutes.

Put the tea powder into the small pot. Your chocolate should begin to turn green.

After that, use some chocolate to draw a Christmas tree on the cookie.

Choose colorful candy to put on the tree. That's it. The cookies should taste good.

37~38 題 Here is Lucy's homework.

One Giant Leap

People first saw frogs and toads 400 million years ago. But do they have a future? Scientists from all over the world are trying to answer this question. They came up with a plan that is one big leap to save these animals. This means frogs and toads need our help, or they may die out.

Frogs and toads are amphibians. Amphibians are cold-blooded animals. They live on both land and in water. That means they can jump on roads and swim in water. Frogs and toads are in the same family, but they are different in many ways. Frogs have long strong legs, but toads have short ones. Frogs have strong legs for jumping, but toads have strong legs for walking. Because frogs need to keep their back wet, they live near water. Toads have dry backs, so they live on land.

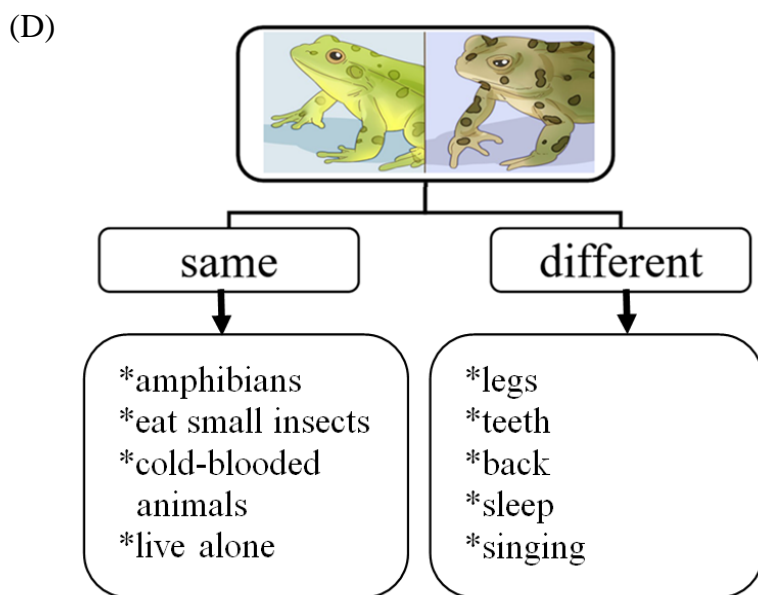

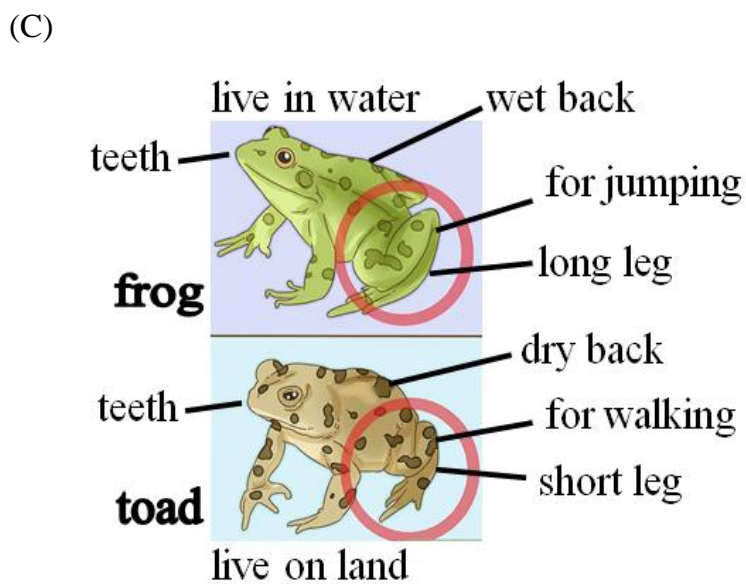

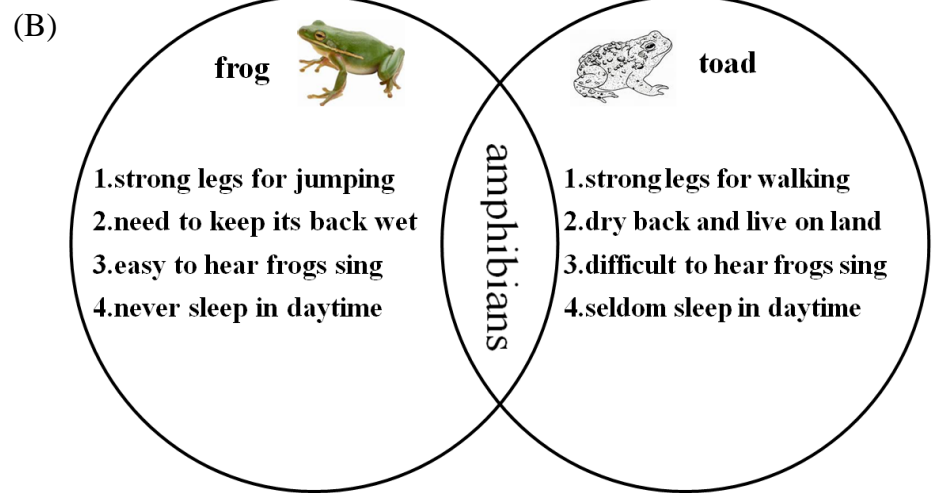

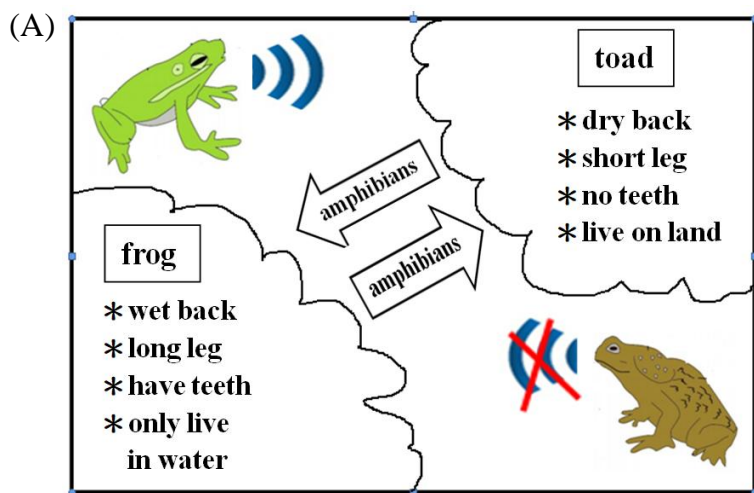

It's easy to hear frogs sing. However, it's difficult to hear toads sing. Frogs have teeth, but toads have no teeth. Both of them like to eat small fish, spiders, and many other small insects. Most frogs are lively in daytime, but toads sleep in daytime and are lively at night. Both frogs and toads live alone. That means they don't like to live with their family and friends.

Many kinds of frogs are going to be gone. A study in 2004 found that almost 2000 kinds of amphibians were hard to find. Several things could be hurting amphibians, for example, cutting down many trees and polluting water. In Washington, D.C., scientists have a plan to help amphibians. It's not easy to save amphibians. But there is hope. "We still have time to take action," says Claude Gascon of the World Conservation Union.

future 未來 scientist 科學家 insect 昆蟲 polluting 污染的

37. Which is true according to Lucy's homework?

according to 根據

38. What does "We still have time to take action," mean in the last line?

- (A) Because there is hope, we should give up trying to save amphibians.
- (B) Because it is not easy to help amphibians, we should do nothing for them.
- (C) We must do good things for amphibians to save them, or they may be gone.
- (D) We must cut down more trees to look after them, or they may have no place to live.

Jerry Stevens has been unhappy these months. He used to be a proud businessman of a successful shaved ice shop. His highest sales numbers were 1,899 plates a week; people called him "Ice King." But all this changed when the cookie shop across the street started selling ice cream cookies. It took away half of his business.

And things didn't get better when Dan, his dead sister's only son, came to work for him.

Dan was a nice young man with a simple mind, too simple, maybe. He always let people try some shaved ice for free, but he never learned to see when "some" became "too much." Many people came, but few bought. When the sales did not grow with the heat, Jerry started to worry. He wanted to send Dan home. But how could he? Dan had no family except him.

Then, one day, good news arrived. And it was from across the street. The cookie shop was looking for a clerk. For Jerry, it was a great chance to get Dan out of his store without sending him home. After taking the shopkeeper to several nice dinners, Jerry got Dan the job.

Now Jerry could finally try and save his store. And maybe Dan would help by sending him a few people who are thirsty from eating too many cookies.
