Dear Ted,

I am also a senior high school student, and I can help. My fights with my parents started in junior high school. My interests were playing basketball and rapping. After one really serious fight, I was also very unhappy. I didn't talk to my parents for 2 weeks and almost ran away from my house.

My dream wasn't to be a famous basketball player but to be a rap star in Taiwan. I knew that I was never going to be in the NBA. Only Jeremy Lin did that. But I was really good at dancing, rapping, and singing. That's three chances to make it in the pop world. However, I didn't do well on my tests, and my parents stopped me from dance, rap, and song contests.

What did I do? I got angry with my parents and shouted at them. They shouted back at me. I said I want to be a pop star. They cared more about math and science. Something had to change.

E. So is my favorite rapper. He can sing, too, and more importantly, he was born in Taiwan. My parents believed all rappers came from the USA. I told them a Taiwanese could rap here, just like E. So. What's more, I said I would study my subjects, like math and science. Then I asked if I could go back to the contests I loved so much. They slowly said yes.

I am very sorry that your parents said your music was trash. Maybe you can show them the truth about art like I did.

Good Luck and Best Wishes!

- (D) Fight for your right and ran away from home.

III

According to a 2020 study of Hillwood City, over 50% of teenagers have Internet friends. The report says 3% of them have shared intimate pictures or videos with their online friends because these "friends" asked them to. Sadly, sometimes these people spread the pictures or videos without asking them first. This makes parents worried about their kids' online activities.

To keep their kids away from getting hurt, parents can teach them some Internet safety tips. For example, they can tell their kids to never give out their personal information online, like their phone number. Also, it's not wise to share any intimate pictures or videos with anyone. If the kids really want to meet their online friends, parents must ask them not to go alone.

The Internet can be a dangerous place for kids. Parents should spend time teaching their kids about Internet safety.

Taiwanese Bian-dang in Manhattan, New York City
5/30/2014 by Eva Schmidt

Big Apple News

During lunch time, on 53rd Street, you'll see a long line of people in front of a Taiwanese food truck for their "bian-dang," a Taiwanese word for "lunch box." On the menu you can find fried chicken with rice, pork dumplings, tea eggs, and other popular Taiwanese dishes.

The owners of the food truck are Thomas and Diana Yang, two Taiwanese-Americans. This brother-sister team started their business in 2009. Back then, there were a few Taiwanese restaurants in the city and several thousand food trucks, but the Yangs were the first to sell Taiwanese food on a food truck.

At first, business was slack. People thought they were just another Chinese food truck, and the food truck's name, "Cravings," often made people think of desserts, not lunch. Few people would stop by and try their food. "I couldn't even give away free food," said Thomas. To catch people's eye, they painted their truck blue, and drew Taiwan's national flower, the plum blossom, on it. They also changed the food truck's name to "bian-dang." Soon people started to notice them, and business finally got better. Now on a good day, they can sell about 150 bian-dangs in about two hours.

So what's next for Thomas and Diana? Well, they hope one day there will be a block with Taiwanese food in the city, just like there is a Chinatown, a Korea Town, and a Little Italy. And their bian-dang food truck might just help to make that happen.

- () 40. What does the news story say about the Yangs' food truck?
- (A) How they fixed their business problems.
(B) How they made delicious fried chicken.
(C) What made them start their business.
(D) What people love about their food.
- () 41. What does it mean when business is slack?
- (A) It is bad.
(B) It is for sale.
(C) It is growing.
(D) It is open every day.
- () 42. What does that mean in the news story?
- (A) A business that is popular across the country.
(B) A Taiwanese restaurant.
(C) A second Taiwanese food truck.
(D) A city block that sells Taiwanese food.
