Sometimes when the rain falls hard and fast on you, it might hurt a little. But what happens when the rain hits a mosquito? A 2012 study says when a raindrop falls on a mosquito, it's like when a bus hits a person. Besides, a little insect is hit by a raindrop about once every 20 seconds. So why don't we see many dead mosquitoes after it rains?

A mosquito is as big as a raindrop, but it is much lighter — 0.002 g only. This saves its life from raindrop attacks. Because a mosquito is so light, when it is hit by a raindrop, it won't experience a force that is strong enough to kill it.

The study also found that when a mosquito is hit by a raindrop, the insect is moved by the raindrop and falls together with it. But the mosquito doesn't get wet easily because it is covered with hairs which keep off water. After dropping about 6 cm, a mosquito will roll off the raindrop and fly away.

However, this trick isn't always successful. If the mosquito flies too low when it is hit by the raindrop, it won't have time to fly away. Then it will hit the ground and meet its death.

33. Why don't we see many dead mosquitoes after it rains?

- (A) It is very light.
- (B) It has no body hairs.
- (C) It is as big as a raindrop.
- (D) It can break a raindrop.

34. How does a mosquito meet its death in the rain?

- (A) It drops 6 cm in the rain.
- (B) The rain is very heavy.
- (C) The raindrops hit it many times.
- (D) It flies very close to the ground.

(Ray and Ann are talking about their summer vacation after school)

Ray: Ann, you're back. How was your summer vacation?

Ann: It was great.

Ray: Where did you go?

Ann: My family and I took a trip to Hualien in August.
We stayed there for three days.

Ray: I like Hualien a lot. I went there last summer. The views there were wonderful! And there was also a lot of delicious food in the night market.

Ann: We are on the same page. In the night market, BBQ and fresh juice were my favorite.
We went there every night.

Ray: Where else did you visit?

Ann: My family and I went to the aboriginal harvest festival. People sang and danced to celebrate their great harvest. At the end of the party, they invited us to dance with them. We really had fun there.

Ray: That's wonderful!

Ann: During the festival, the young Amis men and women in traditional clothes danced and held hands together. When a girl finds a boy she liked, she stood by the boy and danced with him.

Ray: Cool! I'm good at dancing, too. Maybe I can join the aboriginal harvest festival next summer.
